

SPRING INTO ACTION

ON MAY 5

Friends,

A coach's responsibility to her players reaches beyond the playing field. Now, with the coronavirus pandemic forcing the closure of fields and gyms, Coaching Corps has continued to be there for the kids and families – because coaches don't leave their teams when times are hard.

Quickly pivoting to meet new needs, Coaching Corps staff, coaches and volunteers are out in our communities with a different playbook.

Click above for a message from Hall of Fame, Stanford Women's Basketball Head Coach Tara VanDerveer

Coaching Corps kids, all from low-income communities, are at higher risk for long-lasting, negative impacts. As we shelter at home, we can't forget those who are most impacted in this time of such uncertainty and anxiety. Coaching Corps hasn't.

On May 5th, let's support Coaching Corps on #GivingTuesdayNow and make sure they can continue their essential work.

Coaching Corps is lifting our community. Let's help them do that.

Warmly,

Tara VanDerveer

Head Women's Basketball Coach, Stanford University